1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

There is no antecedent basis for either "center side" found in line 6 of claim 3 or "peripheral side" found in line 7.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by either Ugawa et al.-US 2003/0170550 (Ugawa) or Sato et al.-US 2004/0146786. (Sato)

Reference is made to the Abstract in Ugawa along with Figure 1, Example 1 and in particular paragraph 0051 where the four claimed components of the electrolyte are recited in the claimed amounts.

With regard to Sato, see the Abstract therein, paragraph 0198 disclosing the coiled battery, Example 1 and in particular paragraph 0236 where the four claimed components of the electrolyte are recited in the claimed amounts.

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claim 3, as best understood, is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Ugawa or Sato, each taken in view of Yamaguchi-US 6,869,723. (Yamaguchi)

The only claimed feature not taught by either Ugawa or Sato is either the anode or the cathode being exposed at an inner portion or at an outer portion with no active material thereon. As set forth in the Abstract to Yamaguchi, a coiled cell having no active material on either the inner electrode or an outer electrode is disclosed-see Figures 1 and 2 and column 1, line 41 through column 2, line 41. To have included in either of the battery cells of either Ugawa or Sato the configuration of the electrode with no active material at an inner or outer portion would have been obvious so that it would be easier to connect a load thereto.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Abe et al. show a lithium secondary battery having an electrolyte of interest.
